

ThermHex Waben is looking for distributors (America & Europe)

We are a leading producer of polypropylene honeycomb core. Our core material is used for the production of lightweight construction components.

The patented, unique, continuous and efficient ThermHex production process allows for the use of honeycomb cores in applications where, mostly for cost reason, the PP honeycomb cores were not considered an option before.

We are looking for distributors / partners in Europe and America to establish and run a local business for our unique honeycomb cores.

You are familiar with lightweight core material, composites and sandwich panels? Contact us and feel the spirit of our honeycomb cores.